CUNA Brokerage Services selects EAI Information Systems' technology to support Broker Dealer operations and boost agent productivity

BEAVERTON, Ore. – The CUNA Brokerage Services, Inc. has selected EAI Information Systems' modular, Web-based technology system to support its Broker Dealer Operations. CUNA is the leading financial services provider to credit unions and their members worldwide, and they have licensed EAI's commission, compliance surveillance, life insurance processing and contact management modules.

EAI's integrated software system supports retail investment and insurance product sales with technology solutions for back office and front line sales functions. Managers and field reps can access critical information any time, from anywhere.

"EAI's compliance surveillance module helps organizations better manage risk, while the commissions modules takes the headache out of managing multiple compensation structures for reps," said Matt Essieh, chief executive officer of EAI.

A company of experienced banking and technology experts, Portland, Oregon-based EAI was founded in 1989. For more information, visit EAI on the Web at www.eaiinfosys.com.
